

Meet Rebecca

Rebecca is a nine-year-old girl that came to Providence Home after being at another facility for eight months. Prior to that placement, she had spent her whole life living with her grandparents. Rebecca's grandparents have been challenged by her behaviors as she was unable to stay in school all day due to her running away and not being safe in the classroom. Rebecca is learning to follow adult directions, allow adults to care for her, and to express her frustrations in a healthy manner.

Rebecca's grandparents are committed to her, and she will soon return to their home. They will receive support from Providence Home staff and clinicians to care for Rebecca during her times of struggling. Rebecca is so expressive and gives the staff some very funny quotes – such as 'Cheese is my biggest predator' and 'I am stuck in gluten'! Rebecca's grandparents have said that Rebecca has made more progress in her three months at Providence Home than all of the time at other agencies combined. Intermountain is working to bring emotional well-being to families of all types in communities across Montana.

In need of prayer....

The children, families and staff of Intermountain are always in need of prayer. The children are in a new environment and learning how to manage their emotions, anger and fear. The staff and families are guiding the way but the path can be difficult and stressful. The rewards are immense, but prayers for peace and healing are always welcome.

Meet Rebecca

Rebecca is a nine-year-old girl that came to Providence Home after being at another facility for eight months. Prior to that placement, she had spent her whole life living with her grandparents. Rebecca's grandparents have been challenged by her behaviors as she was unable to stay in school all day due to her running away and not being safe in the classroom. Rebecca is learning to follow adult directions, allow adults to care for her, and to express her frustrations in a healthy manner.

Rebecca's grandparents are committed to her, and she will soon return to their home. They will receive support from Providence Home staff and clinicians to care for Rebecca during her times of struggling. Rebecca is so expressive and gives the staff some very funny quotes – such as 'Cheese is my biggest predator' and 'I am stuck in gluten'! Rebecca's grandparents have said that Rebecca has made more progress in her three months at Providence Home than all of the time at other agencies combined. Intermountain is working to bring emotional well-being to families of all types in communities across Montana.

In need of prayer....

The children, families and staff of Intermountain are always in need of prayer. The children are in a new environment and learning how to manage their emotions, anger and fear. The staff and families are guiding the way but the path can be difficult and stressful. The rewards are immense, but prayers for peace and healing are always welcome.